Technisource's John Migliazza to Serve on HDI 2008 - 2009
Strategic Advisory Board

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. - October 13, 2008 – Technisource, one of the largest technology services providers in North America, announced today that John Migliazza has been chosen to serve on the 2008 - 2009 Strategic Advisory Board for HDI®, the world's largest IT service and support membership association and the industry's premier certification and training body.

The Strategic Advisory Board's mission is to formulate informed recommendations on industry trends and directions and to assist HDI in documenting and communicating these trends to the membership and the service and support industry at large.

HDI managing director Craig Baxter announced, "HDI is pleased to welcome John Migliazza as a new member of the HDI Strategic Advisory Board. The industry experience and knowledge that John brings to HDI will help facilitate the advancement of technical support processes worldwide."

Selected from a pool of more than 200 qualified candidates, Migliazza has over 10 years' experience in developing and managing help desk organizations. He currently oversees Technisource's technology support services operations. John's organization employs more than 450 industry professionals and manages service desks in the healthcare, insurance, banking, pharma and government sectors. He has created and implemented hundreds of support solutions and has a unique perspective on scaling and customizing help desk operations and best practices.

"I couldn't be more delighted to be chosen for this prestigious honor. I look forward to working with my fellow board members to provide service and support to the industry and better prepare them to meet tomorrow's challenges," said John Migliazza, national practice director for technology support services for Technisource.

Prior to joining Technisource, Migliazza spearheaded operations for an IT training start up and was vice president of investments at Donald & Co.
